

Dr. Vitina Speciale-Olmo is an award-winning and strategic leader with breadth and depth of experience across business, legal, and teaching arenas. Currently, she is a National Strategic Sourcing Manager and Contracts Specialist for the largest commercial real estate services and investment firm globally, partnering cross-functionally, providing B2B solutions, and improving costs, efficiencies, and operations. Dr. Speciale-Olmo has always had passion for the law, contracts, and procedure. This passion for the law and procedure started in high school as a member of the Young Lawyers Club and blossomed in college as a participant in the Harvard Model United Nations as a representative and also as the parliamentarian of various committees for the Saint Peter's College (now Saint Peter's University) Model United Nations.

As a parliamentarian, she learned the value of ensuring that all viewpoints should be heard in a fair and respectful environment. taught employees and students in corporate, school, and virtual environments. As the enforcer of the parliamentary rules for each committee, Dr. Speciale-Olmo acted in a firm manner ensuring that the discussion remained on point and without fighting. The education that she was provided by participating as the parliamentarian has helped her to grow in her career and inspired her to move forward in her education. To this day, Dr. Speciale-Olmo's favorite sound is that of a striking gavel and calling a meeting to order. As part of growing in her education and working to mentor other, she has earned degrees for Doctorate in Healthcare Administration, Master in Business Administration, Juris Doctor, and Bachelor of Science in Business Management, admission to the NJ Bar, and certifications in compliance and editing. She is a member of the NJ Bar Association, Delta Theta Phi, and Delta Sigma Pi as well as an active volunteer in her community.
